THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION

1. On 10 and 11 September military supplies, including ammunition and fuel, were transferred from warehouses at Foochow to warehouses at Hungshanchiao (洪山橋) and Nant'ai (119-18, 26-02), both suburbs of Foochow, as a precaution against air raids.
2. On 1 September the construction of two 1,200-ton landing craft was completed at Foochow. The work was done under the supervision of Soviet naval technicians. On 7 September both vessels were turned over to Chinese Communist marines of the Southeast China Naval Command in the Foochow area.
3. Since 10 September the emplacement of anti-aircraft guns and searchlights has been in progress at Nant'ai, Mawei (119-26, 25-59), Yuhuan (玉環), and T'angch'ien (119-18, 26-02), all in the Foochow area.
4. In early September, in cooperation with the Foochow Seaman's Association and the Foochow Shipping Administration, Chinese Communist military authorities at Foochow completed the registration of all vessels in the Foochow area. No vessels were permitted to leave Foochow without permission from the military authorities in that area.

6. On 1 October the Kwangtung Military District Headquarters was notified by the Central and South China Military Area Headquarters that five submarines were to be assigned to duty in the Bocca Tigris Straits area by the Soviet unit at the Yulin submarine base before 15 October. These submarines are to patrol the East Kwangtung coast to prevent surprise attacks by Nationalist warships and to intercept Nationalist vessels used by guerrillas. All five submarines are manned by Soviet crews.
7. Chinese Communist authorities have ordered 174 small naval vessels to leave Shanghai and assemble at Bocca Tigris before 15 October. Each of these vessels is manned by 40-50 marines and is armed with 2 small cannon, 2 howitzers, 2 machine guns, and 5 sub-machine guns. The mission of these vessels is to patrol the coast between the mouth of the Pearl River and the Ch'aoan-Swatow area.
